

Abstract

Autoimmune hepatitis is usually a chronic disease of young females. It can cause cirrhosis, liver transplantation or death if left untreated. It is a spectrum of disorders affecting hepatocellular patterns or bile ductules. This is a case of a 34-year-old male who had acute icteric hepatitis without liver failure that we have managed with steroids after the liver biopsy and had a good response over the next month.

Keywords: Autoimmune hepatitis, liver biopsy, immunoglobulin,