

Abstract

Granulomatosis with polyangiitis which is pathologically characterized by necrotizing granulomatous vasculitis is one of the rare multisystem inflammatory diseases of unknown origin. Initial presentation of this disease can vary between patients. We report on a patient who presented with otologic and ocular manifestations and progressed into rapid deterioration with peripheral neuropathy and renal involvement.