

ABSTRACT

A 56-year-old female presented with Very large volume of blood stained loose stool and severe abdominal pain. She found to have anemia and circulatory collapse which required urgent resuscitation, blood transfusion and intensive care unit admission. She developed gullain-barre syndrome while she was in ICU and found to have positive stool culture for campylobacter jejuni infection.